Wireless Supply Is Open For Business During COVID-19 Pandemic

CHARLOTTE, NC – As COVID-19 continues to wreak havoc across America, Wireless Supply stands ready to help.

“During this critical time in our country, it is important that industry leaders work together to keep the telecommunications industry online and operating smoothly,” said Jeff Hall, General Manager of Wireless Supply. “As an essential company in this fight, we remain open for business and ready to supply and support the telecommunications market in any way we can.”

With more Americans than ever before working from home or telecommuting, and Emergency Medical Services call volumes rising daily, a fully operational communications infrastructure has never been more important. With more than 1,200 products available to deploy at a moment's notice, Wireless Supply is ready to help.

The team at Wireless Supply has decades of combined experience in the Telecommunications and Emergency Services industries, making them uniquely equipped to provide products and support during this unprecedented time. If your company needs a wireless solution of any kind, reach out to Wireless Supply today at 1.888.51.SUPPLY, or find them online at wirelessupply.com.
